DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kawabe, et al (6,027,130).

Kawabe teach an automotive suspension assembly comprising a knuckle having a camber; a lower control arm rotatably affixed to the knuckle by way of a lower mount joint rotatably engaging a lower rotational joint; and an upper control arm rotatably affixed to the knuckle by way of an upper mount joint rotatably engaging an upper rotational joint, the upper rotational joint including an integral upper control arm shaft positioned within a slotted guide, the camber adjustable by adjusting the position of the upper control arm shaft within the slotted guide, as shown in the figures. The upper control arm shaft is positioned along the rotational axis of the upper rotational joint. The upper mount joint is formed as a portion of the upper control arm and the upper rotational joint is formed as a portion of the knuckle. The upper mount joint is formed as a portion of the knuckle and the upper rotational joint is formed as a portion of the upper control arm. The upper rotational joint comprises a cross-axis ball joint and a bushing joint. The suspension includes at least one service shim port formed in the upper control arm. The suspension includes a plurality of upper rear ball joints affixed to the upper control arm; and a plurality of lower rear ball joints affixed to the lower control arm. The upper rear ball joints and the lower rear ball joints comprise cross-axis ball joints. The slotted guide is orientated to provide uni-directional displacement between the upper control arm and the knuckle. The upper control arm shaft comprises a bolt fastener.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed October 8, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The applicant argues the reference is an inappropriate basis for rejection as it applies to the adjustment of caster within a drivetrain as opposed the camber, the examiner notes the reference, U.S. Patent 6, 027,130 to Kawabe, et al. discloses the claimed structure as well as the adjustment of caster which results to an adjustment of camber. Further, the reference teaches the claimed invention.

Conclusion

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
